

The tricky politics of passports

Orange County Register

SANTA ANA, Calif. — Natives of Taiwan are listed as coming from China on their U.S. passport.

Former Soviets now are natives of Russia, Belarus, Ukraine, Lithuania or other republics granted independence.

And Israelis born in the Golan Heights are listed as natives of Syria.

Not all persons applying for U.S. passports are happy with the policy that calls for the place of birth to be the country that now has sovereignty over the area where someone was born.

Persons who object to this can have their city of birth listed on their passport instead.

U.S. policy and historical changes dictate how the Passport Services Agency lists a passport holder's place of birth.

The current rules have been in place since February 1993, said Christopher Lamora, a spokesman for the State Department's Bureau of Consular Affairs.

The agency must list countries as they are currently recognized by the State Department, officials said.

The State Department avoids using names that tend to indicate support for one side or another during a dispute over sovereignty, officials said. It also has taken issue with what

Baha'i Faith

The Baha'i Faith is the second most widespread religion in the world. Baha'is, named for those who follow the teachings of Baha'u'llah, believe in the oneness of humanity. This month several Baha'i programs may be seen on cable television. "The Power of Race Unity," "The Power of Prayer," and "Family: Seeds of World Peace" are programs being aired on the Bravo, Court TV and Odyssey Channels. Please check local listings or call 319-363-6393, 1-800-22-UNITE or WWW.U.S.BAHAI.ORG.

The lights of the Christmas Tree fascinate. With one flip of a switch, a lifeless room becomes alive with light. Those lights have mesmerized alike for years. They serve as a reminder that we are to celebrate the light that illuminates all darkness. Jesus Christ guide us on our journey of hope through the night.
